Revised:

SUBJECT: SENIOR CITIZENS PROGRAM

In an effort to strengthen community ties and foster a better quality of life for older residents of the region, Brewton-Parker College works with residents who are 65 years old or older to enroll them at significant discounts in the College's higher education curriculum. Any senior citizen, as defined above, can enroll in courses at Brewton-Parker College for credit through the following procedures:

- ◆ Present proof of age (driver's license, etc.);
- ◆ Complete application for admissions and pay application fee;
- ◆ Present transcripts from other colleges attended;
- ◆ Register for any class in which Senior Citizens Program enrollees are not displacing fully enrolled students;
- ◆ Pay the Senior Citizens Program tuition, which is $100 per course.

Transcripts will be created and grades will be provided for these students. They are subject to the same fees for laboratory expenses or textbook costs as other students. No financial assistance is available to students for this program.

Any senior citizen, as defined above, can audit courses at Brewton-Parker College through the following procedures:

- ◆ Present proof of age (driver's license, etc.)
- ◆ Complete an application for admissions and pay application fee;
- ◆ Register for any class in which Senior Citizen Program enrollees are not displacing fully enrolled students;
- ◆ Pay the Senior Citizen Program audit tuition, which is $50 per course.

Senior Citizen Program audit students will adhere to the policies described in the current College catalog. They will not be subject to prerequisite requirements and book purchases are not mandatory. Classes charging laboratory fees cannot be audited. No financial assistance is available to students for this program.
